About the SME Finance Forum

Established by the G20 and managed by IFC, the SME Finance Forum seeks to accelerate financing to small businesses. It operates a global member network of banks, fintech firms and development finance institutions and helps them improve their work through knowledge-sharing, partnerships and policy advocacy.

"It brings the entire ecosystem together. You have people from emerging markets as well as developed countries. You have financial institutions who've been trying to do SME lending the traditional way and companies who are using machine learning, automation and other advanced technologies. So it creates this environment where each one can learn from the other."

Anju Patwardhan, Managing Director at Creditease Fintech Fund
