REASON FOR TODAY'S CALL:
 -toilet making a loud squealing noise during flush.

DESCRIPTION OF WORK PERFORMED:
 Sep8---On the first flush there was a howling noise emitting from the wall while the tank was re-filling. I could not get this sound to come back on any subsequent flush. This howling sounds like mild water hammer which is usually caused by either the shut off valve or the toilet fillvalve. This particular fillvalve will be difficult to replace, and seeing as how I'm not certain that it requires replacement I started by repairing the shut off valve(replaced stem, washer, handle, packing, and packing nut). I will check back in a week to see whether this solved the issue, if not, the next step would be to replace the fill-valve. Sep16---I followed up with Barbara and she mentioned the howling is still there but not as loud as before. She is ok with it for now, if the howling gets worse i suggest lifting the toilet and replacing the fill-valve.
