REASON FOR TODAY'S CALL:
 kitchen sink drain leaking where it joins the building copper pipe. replaced rubber connector but problem still happening.

DESCRIPTION OF WORK PERFORMED:
 The copper trap arm coming from the drain stack has eroded and a crack has formed along the bottom of the pipe that extends into the wall. The wall will likely have to be opened up to facilitate this repair. I have suggested having the plumbing company that deals with the building in to complete the repair as they will likely have a better idea of how to do so with minimal intrusion, also it may very well end up being a strata issue as the piping is inside the wall.
