REASON FOR TODAY'S CALL:
Leak under the bathroom sink

DESCRIPTION OF WORK PERFORMED:
The drain assembly installed is meant for a sink with an overflow which this sink does not have. Because of this, the hole in the countertop is subject to flowing water, essentially becoming part of the drain piping. I tightened the nut that secures the drain assembly to the sink, or in this case the countertop, and tested by filling and draining the sink multiple times. No signs of other leaking.

TECHNICIAN RECOMMENDATIONS:
While the leaking has stopped I would suggest installing a drain assembly meant for this type of sink. Also the drainage is piped incorrectly, creating a larger ptrap then is required, this should be repiped as well.
