REASON FOR TODAY'S CALL:
leak under kitchen sink.

DESCRIPTION OF WORK PERFORMED:
 May22: The braided dishwasher supply line was leaking from the end that connects to the water supply under the sink. This leaking was not coming from the 3/8" threaded connector but rather from the manufacturer crimped fitting on the end of the hose. I installed a 3/8" Retro Stop and replaced this braided supply line. During testing it appeared that water was leaking from between the dishwasher and the cabinet but it was hard to say for sure because the area under the dishwasher was wet. I turned the supply to the dishwasher off and will return to test again once the area under the machine is fully dried out. May31: I returned and ran the machine through a short fill and drain cycle. While the machine was filling I could see that water was indeed leaking from between the machine and the cabinet. I'm guessing that the water leaking under the sink caused the MDF board next the dishwasher to swell up enough to pinch the black rubber hose that runs up the left side of the dishwasher
